THEME: REJUVENATION

Stimulation to a renewed vigour and dynamism in the profession and the process of creative output

Rejuvenation is variously defined as making something look younger or more vital, or giving new vigour to something, or restoring something to an original or even a new state of being. Architecture being one of oldest professions has indeed undergone many cycles of development, transformation and revival – a variety of rejuvenations over the millennia. How are we to rejuvenate such a long established profession in Asia?

The ACA16 in Kuala Lumpur will attempt to do just that.
